The disturbance originated over the southwest where a heavy down pour profited the winter wheat crop. Sweeping northeast over Tennessee, Illinois and Indiana and Michigan, many towns were hard hit. The four states reported many injured by the high wind which at times lifted pedestrians from their feet and dashed them against buildings. Traffic was paralyzed.

The storm passed over the Great Lakes today, and will blow itself out down the St. Lawrence valley, official weather forecasts predicted.

Railroad were blocked by heavy snowfall in the northern Adirondacks and a general snowfall over the Atlantic states was predicted. The gale was dying out as the disturbances moved eastward.

Pinson was quietly sleeping when the storm broke, wrecking houses and buildings. Many of the dead were killed while they slept. Others were tossed about in the wreckage of their homes as the storm whirled about the little town. Rain and light hail followed the high winds, adding to the misery of the victims. The casualties lay scattered about while the townspeople who escaped with only slight injuries tried frantically in the darkness and rain to help them.

Messengers were rushed to surrounding towns to secure nurses, physicians, provisions, ambulances and emergency necessities.

Hours after the cyclone had passed, leaving death and destruction in its wake, little bands of half clad townspeople struggled to repair the damages to their homes.

Bands of relief workers arrived shortly before dawn.

Many of the dead and injured still lay in the streets or under the wreckage of their homes. Bands of relief workers arrived shortly before dawn.

They came in automobiles, broken down buggies and other conveyances. They found the schoolhouse, two churches and a number of dwelling places demolished. Debris was scattered over a wide area. Many of the dead and injured still lay in the streets or under the wreckage of their homes. Relief workers also pushed out to Deannville a village near Pinson where the storm caused considerable damage. Eight injured persons were put aboard a special train and additional victims were brought here for treatment.

POLICE FIND BABY IN THEATRE AS THOUSANDS SEARCH SIX STATES

NURSE IS FOUND HIDING IN A NEW YORK BOARDING HOUSE

Newburgh, N. Y., March 12—Baby Leo Minkin, kidnaped from Albany Thursday and sought in half a dozen states, was found late Saturday in a Newburgh theater.

The nurse who stole him from the home of his parents, Judge and Mrs. Leopold Minkin, was apprehended earlier in the day.

While thousands were searching for the kidnaped child, he was held in hiding here by the nurse, who says she stole him away from his mother because she had been drugged by a man and did not know what she was doing.

The nurse and child had come directly from the Minkin home at Albany to a rooming house kept by William Sickler.

CONFESSES TO
AWFUL MURDER

(By United Press)
Collinsville, Ill., March 12—Felix Saknowic today confessed killing Joe Polisle, dismembering the body, wrapping it in a sack and throwing it into the Canteen creek, according to authorities here.

Saknowic's arrest followed charges made by Julia Saknowic, sister-in-law of the alleged murderer who alleged she was an eye witness to the killing. The girl, only 14, told police he entered Polisle's home last night and after a brief argument seized a rifle and shot and killed Polisle. Saknowic ordered the girl away, she declared, after warning her to keep quiet "or you'll be next" she declared.

Eiffel Tower Wins
First Radio Battle
With German Stations

Berlin, March 12—The Eiffel tower has won the first round of the battle with German wireless stations broadcasting concerts to Holland, Switzerland and elsewhere. During these concerts the Berlin station often sent out reports of the Ruhr situation, after which some artist frequently sang "Deutschland Ueber Alles." The Eiffel tower, listening in during the strains of the German war hymn, began operations, making it impossible for the Berlin concerts to break through. So long as the matter sent out was purely a concert program there was no interference.

Developments since the announcement of the Ford purchase, mean the greatest era of industrial development in the history of the Twin Cities commercial men believe.

Already plans have been announced for a $3,000,000 railroad and river terminal on Pike Island, below the dam. St. Paul men are interested in the project. The island was purchased recently by Col. Bjornstad, commander of Ft. Snelling.

Extensive building operations are contemplated this season by contractors and home building in the new industrial section which is to be developed adjacent to the Ford plant.

PROGRAM WAS MOST DELIGHTFUL

Violin Solos by Miss Alice Johnstone at Musical Club Were Unusual Ones

ACCOMPANIST ALSO PRAISED

John Seaman Gams Lectured on "A Passing Phase of American Humor"

"One of the most delightful programs of the year," is the general comment on the musical club program of last Saturday.

The first numbers were two violin solos by Miss Alice Johnstone both of them rather unusual selections. The first was "Hymn to the Sun," the solo with which the Golden Cuck greets the sun in Rainy Korsor kow's pantomime opera. This was a Fritz Kreisler transcription, and the second number, which represents a Chinese tambourine, was composed by Fritz Kreisler.

Miss Johnstone threw herself into this with such abandon that the whole audience was transported to Chinatown. The illusion was helped, too, by the sympathy and artistry of the accompaniment, played by Mrs. W. A. M. Johnstone.

John Seaman Gams, who delighted the same audience last year with his reading of "Monsieur Beaucaire" received a cordial greeting.

In a short, analytic lecture on "A Passing Phase of American Humor," he stated that the reason he spoke of these poetical portraits as representing a passing phase of our humor, was because the various types they represent are passing away. We are all getting more alike, said he.

The daily paper, the automobile, radio, etc. are all drawing us closer together, and tending to produce a single type of the genus homo. By rubbing together, we rub off the differences that distinguish the types. By following the same fashions, getting our manners from the "Ladies Home Journal," and our love stories from the Saturday Evening Post, we grow more alike. Pins are polished by putting them in a great square churn and letting them bump against each other until all the rough edges are worn away. The polish makes better pins, but produces a deadly uniformity. Just so with people.

Just as Balzac preserved the social types of his day, so these popular poets have preserved the peculiar types and local color of the different sections of our country.

Mr. Gams then proceeded to read selections that illustrated the New England type, the Southern, the Canadian, the Middle West and the Far West, choosing selections from Sam Walter Foss, Holman F. Day, Joel Chandler Harris, Fred Emmerman Brooks, Henry Drummond, Ben King, Eugene Field, Joe Lincoln, Paul Lawrence Dunbar and Frank L. Stanton.

His selections were so well chosen that they represented a sectional type, good humor and a bit of philosophy. Incidentally, they also showed real genius in the art of interpretive reading on the part of John Seaman Gams.

The president, Mrs. J. A. Thabes, asked the audience to watch the papers for announcement of the date of the celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the birthday of the Musical club, which will be sometime this month. She also announced the next meeting of the Art-Study section, which will take place in the library on the evening of March 24th.

The occasion will be the hanging of the picture presented to the library by the Congdon estate. George D. Labar will make the presentation speech and Anthony Angorolla of the Minneapolis Art Institute will give a talk on "Art Appreciation."

PROGRAM WAS MOST DELIGHTFUL

Violin Solos by Miss Alice Johnstone
at Musical Club Were Unusual Ones

John Seaman Gains Lectured on "A Passing Phase of American Humor"

"One of the most delightful programs of the year," is the general
comment on the Musical club program of last Saturday.

The first numbers were two violin solos by Miss Alice Johnstone both of them rather unusual selections. The first was "Hymn to the Sun," the solo with which the Golden Cock greeted the sun in Rainy Kors-kow's pantomime opera. This was a Fritz Kreisler transcription, and the second number, which represents a Chinese tambourine, was composed by Fritz Kreisler.

Miss Johnstone threw herself into this with such abandon that the whole audience was transported to Chinatown. The illusion was helped, too, by the sympathy and artistry
of the accompaniment, played by Mrs.
W. A. M. Johnstone.

John Seaman Gains, who delighted the same audience last year with his reading of "Monsieur Beaucaire," received a cordial greeting.

In a short, analytic lecture on "A Passing Phase of American Humor," he stated that the reason he spoke of these poetical portraits as representing a passing phase of our humor, was because the various types they represent are passing away. We are all getting more alike, said he.

The daily paper, the automobile,
radio, etc. are all drawing us closer together, and tending to produce a single type of the genus homo. By rubbing together, we rub off the differences that distinguish the types.
By following the same fashions, getting our manners from the Ladies Home Journal, and our love stories from the Saturday Evening Post, we grow more alike. Pins are polished by putting them in a great square churn and letting them bump against each other until all the rough edges are worn away. The polish makes better pins, but produces a deadly uniformity. Just so with people.

Just as Balzac preserved the social types of his day, so these popular poets have preserved the peculiar types and local color of the different sections of our country.

Mr. Gains then proceeded to read selections that illustrated the New England type, the Southern, the Canadian, the Middle West and the Far West, choosing selections from Sam Walter Foss, Holman F. Day,
Joel Chandler Harris, Fred Emmerson Brooks, Henry Drummond, Ben King, Eugene Field, Joe Lincoln,
Paul Lawrence Dunbar and Frank L.
Stanton.

His selections were so well chosen that they represented a sectional type, good humor and a bit of philosophy. Incidentally, they also showed real genius in the art of interpretive reading on the part of John Seaman Gains.

The president, Mrs. J. A. Thabes, asked the audience to watch the papers for announcement of the date

MAKING FRIENDS OF THE HELPFUL

THE greatest of teachers once said, "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations." This is a hard saying whose meaning has been variously interpreted. There are those who believe in taking it in a very literal sense, which leads them to seek the friendship of the powerful, who are able to determine that, if circumstances go against them, they may be again raised to a place of prosperity and comfort.

British royalty has proved during the past half century that it is able to sense the fact that life knows changes and that what obtains today may be changed tomorrow. With this knowledge fully established by changes that have taken place within a lifetime, the king and queen of Britain have consistently endeavored to win the appreciation and approval of the people as a whole. They are the representatives of the nation in its entirety and do not represent any one part of it in particular. They are the nation's symbol of unity and stand in the same relation to the British people as the flag to the American people.

Accordingly, royalty has tended to become ever more democratic in its sympathies and relations. With the passing of the power of government more and more into the hands of the people and the surprising increase in the strength of the labor party, their majesties have step by step approached the common people. But this has come to its highest point in the recent dinner, given by Viscount and Lady Astor, when the king and queen sat down with members of the labor party and their wives. Growing out of this meeting of royalty and labor at dinner, members of the labor party have been invited to dine at Buckingham palace.

This attitude of British royalty might well be copied by others who, obsessed by their power, refuse to meet representatives of labor and agriculture. They will not compromise; they would rather fight. But British royalty sees the handwriting on the wall. In the last election labor polled four votes for every five polled by the Bonar Law party. With this party, which is so rapidly coming into a powerful place in Britain, and in a number of bye-elections has defeated the party in power, British royalty is prepared to make friends. It may not be long until the crown of Britain will be within the gift of this party, representing the laborers of Britain, and many intellectuals who are united in it and are in positions of leadership.

It must not be thought that by such receptions for labor representatives British royalty is throwing a sop to labor. Their majesties are sincere in their attitude, and the Prince of Wales is loved by the people just because of his unspoiled naturalness. If the king and queen attempted to win the loyalty of labor by efforts that lacked sincerity, those whom they chose to win would be the first to see through their scheme. In fact, labor is particularly acute in seeing through camouflage of any kind.

The attitude of British royalty is characterized by a sanity and consideration that holds the promise of the survival of royalty in Britain despite the vicissitudes and changes through which the political life of the nation may pass. Conciliation, consideration and sympathy, aiming at the country's good, are among those things that cost nothing, except the willingness to concede the right of any group to seek to govern, remembering that the minority governed may exercise its inalienable privilege to seek to become the majority governing. But unity and tolerance cannot be won except as both parties forget their prejudices, and it is interesting to note that labor representatives attended the dinner wearing knee breeches. When the king can forget his crown, and the laborer his overalls, and meet each other as men, there is hope for Britain's future and there is no danger of the triumph of Bolshevism.

CONSERVING AND DEVELOPING TIMBER

SECRETARY H. C. WALLACE, of the department of agriculture, is calling attention to the fact that America must conserve and develop timber supplies. Visitors from other parts of the world, in stating their impressions of America, are affirming that the thing most noticeable in this country is its prodigality. With wonderful resources, we do not feel the need of conserving anything, but with a carelessness that is alarming we consume our natural resources without a thought of the time when, through their rapid consumption, we shall be without them.

America consumes around 7,000,000 tons of paper annually and of the pulp-wood that is used in its manufacture twenty per cent is imported. Canada may at any time place an embargo on pulp-wood and the domestic supplies are being reduced to such an extent that unless something is done to conserve supplies and develop new ones it is only a matter of time until the United States will be faced by a pulp-wood famine.

Some years ago Gifford Pinchot called attention to this matter and the facts that he submitted have not as yet led to any serious attempt to improve the situation. The policy that is being pursued is unspeakably selfish. Americans today are deliberately and with reckless abandon consuming resources that are not being replaced, and in so far as these are reduced the generations that follow will suffer. It may be said that their inventive genius must provide for them, and that each generation must bear its own burdens. But in the light of the fact that this generation is not using intelligence in its use of resources, but is extravagant and prodigal in their use, there is little point to the defense that it is up to those who follow to provide for themselves. The expectation that in the future some inventive genius will come along and utilize new materials, is no excuse for a policy that fails to conserve and plant in the present. The earth is ours to use it, but not to abuse it. We have no right to impoverish; we must replenish.

SUNSET-HOMES BILL

THE needs of children and of the aged appeal to the best in men in civilized countries. Those who are helpless at the beginning of life, and helpless again as the end of life approaches; because of their helplessness, make a bid for the aid of those who are in the midst of life.

The Sunset-homes bill is receiving the support of all kinds of men in this state. It is felt that something satisfactory must be done to provide for the aged after their days' work is done. And whatever intelligent and efficient method is adopted to meet the needs of the aged, through providing homes, will have the hearty support of all generous people.

It is sometimes said that by providing for the aged a premium is placed upon indolence during mature years. In some cases this may be true, but it is more generally true that a man loses heart because the future that lies before him is barren and hopeless. It is claimed that the American is the best workman in the world because he is the most hopeful. When a man looks into the future and sees nothing but poverty and need, he is more likely to say "What's the use" and give up the struggle and settle down in indolence than is the man who can look into the future knowing that, even though circumstances are against him, he will not be homeless at the end of the road.

Fraternal societies are attempting to take care of the aged, but they cannot provide for all, and it is the duty of society to make provision for those who, having borne the burden of the day, are unable to provide for themselves, because of the exigencies of circumstances which are often beyond their control.

JAMES JOLLEY waited seven years and chased all over the globe before he got his bride. He covered the long, long trail before his dreams came true, and the two of them ought to hit the new trail very well together.

HENRY FORD is always doing the unexpected, and in paying over $4,000,000 that he was not required to pay, he has surprised folks. Henry believes in a square deal.

SENATOR SHIPSTEAD will bear the republican label despite the fact that he defeated the republican candidate in the election.

IN London the ears of women are becoming shapeless through wearing heavy ear-rings—and yet they wear 'em.

LONG distance fox-trotting is the vogue in England at present. People simply won't conserve—even energy.

THE pre-primary convention law seems to be doomed but, then, it never was a very robust child.

May Ask Change of Venue

Cando, March 12—Change of venue may be asked when Horne murder trial is called during the district court term opening here this week with Judge A. G. Burr presiding.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horne, out now under $5,000 bail each, are accused of murdering the eleven months old daughter of Miss Orphelia Reid of Cando. No motive for the crime has ever been known.

The child was born at the Crittendon home in Fargo and when the mother was able to support herself she took her child to Cando to seek employment. It is said she was unwelcome at the home of her parents in Cando and found difficulty in securing work. At the request of Mrs. Horne, she said she took her child to the Horne home and went to work in a hotel.

The child died at the Horne home. Mrs. Horne testified that about 11 o'clock at night she tended to the child and found it in intense pain. When she went to it again it was dead.

Dr. Roberts, called after Miss Reid had taken the dead child to her parent's home, said that fractured vertebrae proved it had been struck on the head.

There was some criticism because a doctor had not been called immediately when the baby was found dead.

The Hornes claim that personal enemies of their have perjured themselves in order to railroad them to prison.

MAKING FRIENDS OF THE HELPFUL

THE greatest of teachers once said, "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations." This is a hard saying whose meaning has been variously interpreted. There are those who believe in taking it in a very literal sense, which leads them to seek the friendship of the powerful, who are able to determine that, if circumstances go against them, they may be again raised to a place of prosperity and comfort.

British royalty has proved during the past half century that it is able to sense the fact that life knows changes and that what obtains today may be changed tomorrow. With this knowledge fully established by changes that have taken place within a lifetime, the king and queen of Britain have consistently endeavored to win the appreciation and approval of the people as a whole. They are the representatives of the nation in its entirety and do not represent any one part of it in particular. They are the nation's symbol of unity and stand in the same relation to the British people as the flag to the American people.

Accordingly, royalty has tended to become ever more democratic in its sympathies and relations. With the passing of the power of government more and more into the hands of the people and the surprising increase in the strength of the labor party, their majesties have step by step approached the common people. But this has come to its highest point in the recent dinner, given by Viscount and Lady Astor, when the king and queen sat down with members of the labor party and their wives. Growing out of this meeting of royalty and labor at dinner, members of the labor party have been invited to dine at Buckingham palace.

This attitude of British royalty might well be copied by others who, obsessed by their power, refuse to meet representatives of labor and agriculture. They will not compromise; they would rather fight. But British royalty sees the handwriting on the wall. In the last election labor polled four votes for every five polled by the Bonar Law party. With this party, which is so rapidly coming into a powerful place in Britain, and in a number of bye-elections has defeated the party in power, British royalty is prepared to make friends. It may not be long until the crown of Britain will be within the gift of this party, representing the laborers of Britain, and many intellectuals who are united in it and are in positions of leadership.

It must not be thought that by such receptions for labor representatives British royalty is throwing a sop to labor. Their majesties are sincere in their attitude, and the Prince of Wales is loved by the people just because of his unspoiled naturalness. If the king and queen attempted to win the loyalty of labor by efforts that lacked sincerity, those whom they chose to win would be the first to see through their scheme. In fact, labor is particularly acute in seeing through camouflage of any kind.

The attitude of British royalty is characterized by a sanity and consideration that holds the promise of the survival of royalty in Britain despite the vicissitudes and changes through which the political life of the nation may pass. Conciliation, consideration and sympathy, aiming at the country's good, are among those things that cost nothing, except the willingness to concede the right of any group to seek to govern, remembering that the minority governed may exercise its inalienable privilege to seek to become the majority governing. But unity and tolerance cannot be won except as both parties forget their prejudices, and it is interesting to note that labor representatives attended the dinner wearing knee breeches. When the king can forget his crown, and the laborer his overalls, and meet each other as men, there is hope for Britain's future and there is no danger of the triumph of Bolshevism.

SECRETARY H. C. WALLACE, of the department of agriculture, is calling attention to the fact that America must conserve and develop timber supplies. Visitors from other parts of the world, in stating their impressions of America, are affirming that the thing most noticeable in this country is its prodigality. With wonderful resources, we do not feel the need of conserving anything, but with a carelessness that is alarming we consume our natural resources without a thought of the time when, through their rapid consumption, we shall be without them.

Some years ago Gifford Pinchot called attention to this matter and the facts that he submitted have not as yet led to any serious attempt to improve the situation. The policy that is being pursued is unspeakably selfish. Americans today are deliberately and with reckless abandon consuming resources that are not being replaced, and in so far as these are reduced the generations that follow will suffer. It may be said that their inventive genius must provide for them, and that each generation must bear its own burdens. But in the light of the fact that this generation is not using intelligence in its use of resources, but is extravagant and prodigal in their use, there is little point to the defense that it is up to those who follow to provide for themselves. The expectation that in the future some inventive genius will come along and utilize new materials, is no excuse for a policy that fails to conserve and plant in the present. The earth is ours to use it, but not to abuse it. We have no right to impoverish; we must replenish.

GEO. EBINGER IS ROBBED OF $50

Holdup Man Visits His Shoe Store
in Northeast Brainerd Satur-
day Night

"I WANT YOUR MONEY" SAID HE
Flourished Pair of Brass Knuckles
in Face of Victim, Grabbed the Money, and Disappeared

The store of George Ebinger, exclusive shoe dealer, at 113 Kindred
street N. E., was held up shortly after eight o'clock Saturday night by
a lone bandit, and some fifty dollars
in silver and bills taken.

Mr. Ebinger who sleeps in the rear
of his store, had just closed the establishment, when some one rapped
on the door. The visitor a man about 35 years of age, according to Mr.
Ebinger's story, came into the store
and asked how the chances were to
get a pair of high top shoes, size 10 1/2.

"You used to make driving shoes,
didn't you?" he asked the proprietor,
and was told that at one time that
kind of footwear was made. "Well,
I don't want shoes, I want your
money, and I want it quick."

Mr. Ebinger had previously taken
the money out of the till, leaving
only a few pennies. The silver was put in the safe near the front window, and the bills he rolled up and
put in his pocketbook.

The robber took the pennies from
the till, and forced Mr. Ebinger to open the safe and took the silver amounting to $4.50 or $5. The owner of the store was then forced to the rear of the room and searched where
the bills were found, some $40 worth.
He escaped by a side door near the
rear of the shoe repair department,
after admonishing his victim not to
move or give any warning until he had been given time to escape.

The police were called and were
on the scene of the robbery within five minutes after they were notified,
but their search failed to locate anyone answering to the description of the thief. In company with Mr.
Ebinger, the police met the midnight trains in the hope of catching their man if he attempted to escape by that method. Several extra freight trains left earlier in the evening, upon which the robber might have gotten away.

Mr. Ebinger was taken through the different camps at the N. P. shops at supper time Sunday evening, in the hope of identifying the criminal, but without success. The police are working on several clues which they hope will bring results. I. C. Strout,
M. & I. Dispatcher, notified points
on his road by wire to be on the lookout for the bandit.

The bad-man is described by Mr.
Ebinger as being about 6 feet tall,
weight 215 pounds, full faced,
smooth shaven; a man in the neighborhood of 35 years of age. He wore a short mackinaw and a grey cap.
He carried no weapons, or at least displayed none, using a pair of brass knuckles as a "convincer", although he did not hit his victim. He wore no mask and Mr. Ebinger believes he could identify him at any time.

It is thought that he had an accomplice stationed at the rear of building, covering the interior with a gun. There seems to be little doubt as to the fact that the robber was very familiar with Mr. Ebinger's store and his habits, and knew that at one time he made "driving shoes."

Mr. Ebinger is an old resident of Brainerd, and has conducted a store in the block where he is now situated for the past thirty-two years. In several instances sneak thieves have broken his front windows and stolen shoes displayed therein, but this is his first experience with a holdup man.

paring a very interesting program

REPORTS ON BRAINERD ROADS

H. E. Purdy, Local Representative of Standard Oil Co., Records His Experiences

BEST DRIVING ON FROZEN ROADS
Highways Traveled on Little Falls,
Oak Street, Gull Lake, Cooley
Highway, Etc.

H. E. Purdy, local representative of the Standard Oil Company, returned Sunday from Minneapolis by automobile. The paved road from Minneapolis to Little Falls is excellent. There are a few drifts, but they are cut through and the footing is solid.

From Little Falls to Brainerd the road is poor but passable. The worst drifts are just north of Topeka. It is necessary to make two detours in fields to avoid heavy drifts.

At Fort Ripley the drifts are deep,
but one is able to keep on the road.
At some points off the road the snow drifts are higher than the car. The best driving is possible when one motors late at night or very early in the morning, before a thaw is evident.

From Brainerd to Pine River, by way of Gull lake road, the roads are drifted, but passable, with the worst spots at a point on the shore of Gull lake south of the Park cottage and another north of Pequot. In real soft weather it would be difficult to get through. North of Pine River to Hackensack, the road was reported to Mr. Purdy as being good.

The road east on Oak and to Cook's store is fair, with snow on the paying in places. East of the paving the road is practically bare. One can drive all the way to Garrison, Mr. Cook said.

Mr. Purdy will start on a tour of exploration of the road west of Brainerd and expects to drive as far as Pillager this afternoon and may go to Staples.

The road is reported as open to the range towns and one hardy adventurer E. C. Bane, is reported as driving east to Aitkin.

On the Cooley highway, running north of Brainerd, Mr. Purdy said the road to Merrifield could be negotiated. Farther north he had no reports.

It will probably be two weeks before the roads will be in good condition. At present, as noted, the best time to drive is when the road has been hardened by a frost and before the sun gets to loosening up the surface.

GEO. EBINGER IS ROBBED OF $50

Holdup Man Visits His Shoe Store
in Northeast Brainerd Satur-
day Night

"I WANT YOUR MONEY" SAID HE

Flourished Pair of Brass Knuckles
in Face of Victim, Grabbed the
Money, and Disappeared

The store of George Ebinger, exclusive shoe dealer, at 113 Kindred
street N. E., was held up shortly after eight o'clock Saturday night by
a lone bandit, and some fifty dollars
in silver and bills taken.

Mr. Ebinger who sleeps in the rear
of his store, had just closed the establishment, when someone rapped
on the door. The visitor a man about 35 years of age, according to Mr.
Ebinger's story, came into the store
and asked how the chances were to
get a pair of high top shoes, size 10 1/2.

"You used to make driving shoes,
didn't you?" he asked the proprietor,
and was told that at one time that
kind of footwear was made. "Well,
I don't want shoes, I want your
money, and I want it quick".

Mr. Ebinger had previously taken
the money out of the till, leaving
only a few pennies. The silver was
put in the safe near the front window, and the bills he rolled up and
put in his pocketbook.

The robber took the pennies from
the till, and forced Mr. Ebinger to open the safe and took the silver
amounting to $4.50 or $5. The owner of the store was then forced to the
rear of the room and searched where
the bills were found, some $40 worth.
He escaped by a side door near the
rear of the shoe repair department,
after admonishing his victim not to
move or give any warning until he
had been given time to escape.

The police were called and were
on the scene of the robbery within

but their search failed to locate any-

method. Several extra freight trains

working on several clues which they
hope will bring results. I. C. Strout,
M. & I. Dispatcher, notified points
on his road by wire to be on the
lookout for the bandit.

The bad-man is described by Mr.
Ebinger as being about 6 feet tall,
weight 215 pounds, full faced,
smooth shaven; a man in the neighborhood of 35 years of age. He wore

New York, March 12.—Joe Lynch hasn't done much since he won the bantamweight championship the second time, with the exception of losing nearly all the friends and followers he ever had.

Joe apparently is of the idea that the crown was entrusted to him to be kept in good hands and that he has the only good hands in the division. He has even gone so far in picking setups that he will not fight even a first class setup and has descended to the place where his victims are picked almost from the amateur ranks.

In following the habit of holding the title at all costs, Lynch should remember that he never would have won the title if Johnny Buff had been unwilling to take a chance.

Buff did more than take a chance. He fought Lynch when he was in such physical condition that he didn't have one chance in a hundred to win but he was game enough to defend his title against a first class opponent.

Lynch is not in the position of Jack Dempsey, who hasn't any real outstanding rivals, because Carl Tremaine and Joe Burman are camping on his trail and neither one of them is capable of giving him everything he wants.

Burman may have to cut an arm off to make the weight, but Lynch is getting close to the junior featherweight class. Tremaine can make the weight easily.

Lynch's dangers are not confined to the bantamweight class. Pancho Villa, the little American flyweight champion, would give Lynch an awful fight if the New York Irishman would give him a chance. Pound for pound, little Villa is the best fighting machine in the United States and that goes for Dempsey.

Greasy Neale found recently in a medical examination that he had been outfighting in the National League for eleven years with only one eye. His case is not so remarkable, as some other players have been pastiming longer than that without a head.

MILLERS TO TRAIN

Minneapolis, March 12.—By Thursday of this week the Minneapolis spring training work will be in full swing.

By that time Prexy Belden, Pongo Cantillon and all the hired-hands will be toiling in the southern sun, Pongo working out the kinks in his double jointed tongue and the slaves wearing off the winter stiffness in more useful although scarcely more active members.

Camp Looks Good

Clarksdale, the scene of the pre-season activity, has been described as the best of many Minneapolis spring training camps. The ball park is in excellent conditions, the climate usually suitable for strenuous and continuous training and the town itself pleasant but not so pleasant that the players will lose anything from lack of sleep. In fact "Doc" Ayres, who has already been there long enough to vote, writes that rest is one of the easiest things there is to get.

Pongo Is Confident

Pongo Cantillon left Minneapolis today full of optimism. He believes he has picked a winner. He feels that the team has elements of unusual strength in some departments and that he is in a position to plug any weakness that may develop.

Regains Championship Title

Gene Tunney, light heavyweight champion of the world, who regained his title in a decision fight with Harry Greb at Madison Square Garden on Feb. 23rd.

Pathetic Russian Plaything.

A very primitive doll can be found in Russia. It is the moss doll, and it expresses the poverty and loneliness of Russia's forest regions. It is roughly made of wood, with a face of pathetic sadness, and is dressed in hood and clothes of forest moss. The male doll is distinguished from the female only by the hatchet which he carries.

Thought for the Day.

The spirit that prompts a gift is more important than the gift.

RUB RHEUMATIC, ACHING JOINTS AND STOP PAIN

St. Jacobs Oil stops any pain, and rheumatism is pain only.

Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop drugging! Rub soothing, penetrating St. Jacobs Oil right into your sore, stiff, aching joints, and relief comes instantly. St. Jacobs Oil is a harmless rheumatism liniment, which never disappoints, and cannot burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest St. Jacobs Oil at any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness and stiffness. Don't suffer! Relief awaits you. St. Jacobs Oil is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains.—Adv't.

Conservative Estimate.

One explanation and definition of the meaning of "conservative estimate" is found in the assertion of a professor at the University of California, who says that the human race improves 1 per cent in 25,000 years.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Revealing a society marital mix-up of exceptional interest, Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount picture production, "Saturday Night," was shown with great success at the Lyceum theatre yesterday. The theme, which proves that men and women who marry outside their own environment, frequently find time to repent of their rashness, was admirably presented.

The leading players, including Leatrice Joy, Conrad Nagel, Edith Roberts and Jack Mower, vest their portrayals with artistry seldom seen in the movies.

Miss Joy and Mr. Nagel are society folk, while Miss Roberts and Mr. Mower are of a lower social class.

Cupid gets busy with all of them and the result is a mix up through matrimony that would baffle any other producer than Mr. DeMille to straighten out, but he does it with his accustomed grace. The photoplay is filled with stirring and beautiful scenes, all of which will please picture fans. To reveal the story would be unjust to the reader, and it is perhaps sufficient to say that Jeanie Macpherson, who wrote it, never displayed her skill to better advantage. It is showing for the last time tonight.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Mixed Sulphur With It to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store, all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

LYNCH AFRAID FOR TITLE, SAYS FARRELL

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

BASKETBALL

CITY CHAMPIONS TO PLAY ST. CLOUD

Minneapolis, March 12.—The Minneapolis high school basketball champions, who will be decided when South and Central clash at the University armory Tuesday, will oppose St. Cloud, winners of the title in the third district, in the first round of the tournament to decide the state high school champions which will be played at the Kenwood armory March 27, 28 and 29.

First Round Draw Made

This was decided at the meeting of the Minnesota State High School Athletic association at the Minneapolis Athletic club when the draw for the first round of the tournament was made.

The tournament will open at 12:30 p. m., March 27, when the champions of the 10th and 16th districts will clash. All the first round games will be played the first day of the meet.

The draw for the district champions in the first round is:

12:30 p. m., 10th vs. 16th; 1:35 p. m., 12th vs. seventh; 2:40, first vs. fifth; 3:45 p. m., first vs. fifth; 4:50 p. m., fourth vs. 11th; 7:30 p. m., third vs. sixth; 8:35 p. m., second vs. eighth; 9:40, ninth vs. 13th.

All the district champions will be decided within the next 10 days. The concluding tournaments will take place Friday and Saturday except in a few instances where final games will be put over into the next week.

Ask That Title Game Be Dropped

Theodore Utne, Alexandria, secretary of the State High School Athletic association, will ask that the proposed game between the Minneapolis and St. Paul champions for the twin city championship be dropped this year. The contest, it is believed, would detract from the drawing power of the state tournament. It was not expected that the game would be played anyway, on account of the late date on which the city titles will be decided. Many of the district champions who will play in the tourney already have been decided.

Madison, runnerup in the last meet at Carleton college, Northfield, is practically sure of representing the 10th district. The team will play the winner of the 16th district honors in the first round. The 16th district championship, expected to go to either Winona or Rochester, will be decided this week.
